

WALSH DEFEATED BY GILLETT BY CLOSE VOTE IN SENATE RACE

LATE RETURNS WIPE OUT HOPE FOR DEMOCRATS

Official and conscientious work for the last six years. "Which a magnificent vote in closed his already great position." While the hands of the clock swung three times around the circle, following the beginning of the voting, the fight between Gillett and Walsh swung back and forth. In the general turning of Democratic hopes Walsh was the only one who survived the landslide until the last moment.

North Adams sent in a return that was encouraging, giving Walsh 1041 city by a vote of 3,396 to 3,212. Other industrial centers failed to report the Walsh vote until the last moment.

DAYLIGHT SAVING WINS

Daylight saving wins. Child Labor and the gas tax amendments are defeated. On the referendum questions returns from 1081 out of 1124 in the State as follows:

No. 3, Labor Law Yes, 343,316; No, 327,407.

No. 4, Gasoline Tax Yes, 263,831; No, 400,306.

No. 5, Daylight Saving Yes, 361,994; No, 321,171.

No. 6, Child Labor Yes, 188,983; No, 250,728.

Because of his spectacular fight against the Republican candidate in President Coolidge's race, David I. Walsh stands as Governor of Smith of New York as one of the great Democratic leaders of the country.

Walsh's vote in Boston was remarkable. He led Gillett by 7,100 while Curley trailed in Boston on every hand, and Curley by only 77,000. Boston voted for David I. Walsh by a majority of 29,000, even B. Curley for a city councillor from each of the wards was adopted by the voters of Boston.

HOW CURLEY WAS CUT

In spite of the enormous registration in the city, Curley's vote was only 12,000 greater than that of John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic nominee for Governor in 1922.

Curley got 27,000 more votes in the city than Curley got in 1922. David I. Walsh, who Curley was adding 15,000 to the Democratic vote, added 25,000 for his part. He got 135,584 while Curley, who came in, got 110,584.

'CAL'S' DAD VOTES IN 'OLD SAP BUCKET'

PRESIDENT'S FATHER CASTING BALLOT

The elder Coolidge, at the right of Constable George W. Frink, making certain the President received one vote, at least, in Vermont. The old sap bucket proved just as good a receptacle as the most modern ballot box, even if it saved a little of the privilege.

1—Congressman Treadway, Republican.
2—Prof. George B. Churchill, Amherst, Republican.
3—Frank H. Cook, Pittsburg, Republican.
4—George B. Stubb, Worcester, Republican.
5—Congressman Rogers, Republican.
6—Congressman Adams, Republican.
7—Harry L. Thayer, Wakefield, Republican.
8—Congressman Underhill, Republican.
9—Congressman Gallivan, Democrat.
10—Congressman Luce, Republican.
11—Congressman Frothingham, Republican.
12—Joseph W. Martin, Jr., New Bedford, Republican.

Attitash, Republican.
13—Congressman Clifford, Barnstable, Republican.
14—Prof. George B. Churchill, Amherst, Republican.
15—Frank H. Cook, Pittsburg, Republican.
16—George B. Stubb, Worcester, Republican.
17—Congressman Rogers, Republican.
18—Congressman Adams, Republican.
19—Harry L. Thayer, Wakefield, Republican.
20—Congressman Underhill, Republican.
21—Congressman Gallivan, Democrat.
22—Congressman Luce, Republican.
23—Congressman Frothingham, Republican.
24—Joseph W. Martin, Jr., New Bedford, Republican.

Oliver, Charles F. Murphy's successor as leader of Tammany Hall, Coolidge, 62; Davis, 191; La Follette, 61.

Some uncertainty whether Coolidge sweep has netted G. O. P. sufficient gains in Senate and House to command working majority in next Congress.

MAN HURT IN SPRINGFIELD EXPLOSION

Panic in a Springfield Office Building When Watchman Opens Wrong Valve

Springfield, Nov. 5.—One man was seriously burned about the face and body, forty persons were frightened and the lobby room of the Security Building on Vernon street, this city, was wrecked early today when an oil burning boiler exploded.

The injured man is Walter Bell of No. 147 Washington street, night watchman at the building, late of the Springfield Hospital.

Bell, according to the police, was preparing to go home shortly before 8 o'clock this morning. The janitor was late and had left the forty persons then in the lobby of the building were clamorous for Bell, who volunteered to give them some news.

He did not know the workings of the oil burning boiler and turned on the oil when he thought he was turning more water into the boiler. There was a deafening roar as the boiler exploded, and Bell was shrouded with burning oil and hot steam.

Windows were broken in the lobby and doors of the building and the forty occupants fled madly to the street. Some of the men returned to the basement and rescued Bell, who was dazed and lame in a state of burning oil. The oil was shut out and the fire put out by the fire men before it spread from the basement.

SPECIAL Blanket Sale

These Low Prices Are Limited to the Next Few Days

All-wool blankets in white and colors, thin, pink, gray and rose of excellent fine texture, a smooth, well-finished surface and of a particularly white, clean wool. The larger ones are finished with a satiny binding of rich width and quality and the smaller ones with stitching.

60 x 80.....$7.50 a pair
70 x 80.....$9.50 a pair

As the wholesale prices on woolen goods have already increased, blankets now sold are advanced from $1 to $3. The above are phenomenal prices for goods of this quality in this season.

Wool Puffs of Satine Charmeuse

Filled with all lamb's wool—soft and very light. Charmeuse satine is an unexpected thick fabric, very soft and silky looking. It feels like silk, too; but these puffs do not slide off the bed as easily as silk ones. The shades of blue, lavender, rose and yellow in which they come are particularly pretty and harmonious. A Grecian border design of stitching adds to their attractiveness. $12 each.

A Guaranteed Down Puff

These are guaranteed both not to shed down and not to fade. Designs have figured center, plain borders and plain backs. $22.50 each.

This season we have many choice silk covered wool puffs—these are more than we can show you. If you want the best to be had, stop just inside our West Street door or our Boylston Street shop and ask to see them.

Junior League Picks Grace Sargent for Leading Lady in Coming Show

By BETTY ALDEN

LAST year the Junior League presented "The Arden" as its first venture into the field of the theatre.

Next month they're putting on "The Arden" at the Pine Arts Theatre, and now it remains to be seen whether the "League" will surpass themselves in their second production.

The fact that Miss Grace Sargent has been selected for a leading part in the performance, for the dashing daughter of the Arden Sargents has quite "a way with her," as they say.

She possesses not only considerable histrionic talent, but a very pleasing singing voice as well. Besides which she has taken part in numerous amateur theatricals since her debut two years ago.

The part of "Elaine" will be taken by Miss Duffey Roney, who played "Mlle. Valentin" so ably last year. Miss Joseph Sargent, Jr., the dashing young "Napoleon Bonaparte" in "The Arden," is to have a supporting important role in the new production.

Miss Katherine Gray—"Patty" her family name—will play "Mrs. Roney," and Miss Joseph Sargent, Jr., will play "Mr. Roney." Miss Roney will also play "Mrs. Roney" in the new production.

Rehearsals, of course, are going on as a matter of course, so that when the curtain rolls up at the Pine Arts Theatre next month the audience should find the performance a well rounded one.

A program of theatrical ventures of the Junior League is being put on in a cabaret hall the night of December 8.

Providing the ball there will be a brilliant present in which will be presented many of the most famous names of history, the costumes, of course, to be the most gorgeous. PRODUCTION OF 'ADA' IS MOST ARTISTIC

Election Night Lessens Audience, But Fails to Dampen Singers' Ardor

"Ada" was the last for the second night of the San Carlo Opera Company's stay here. The effects of election night, however, were almost negligible for the opera, one of the most popular in the repertoire, failed to draw a large house as expected.

In spite of that fact, however, the production at the Opera House was an artistic masterpiece. In addition to being a spectacle, "Ada" was a powerful drama, and as a production it was a good presentation. Again Mr. Garter, the conductor, was to be thanked for a skillful and musically directed performance of the opera.

The production in general, Mr. Garter brought out the best in the opera, and in what might be an elaborate production, he kept the audience under control.

VOICE COLORED

After Roscoe had cast in the role of Ada, she sang well, possessing good voice, and her acting was satisfactory. She is, as Mr. Garter, reported her as one of the best voices in the opera house.

Leonard Snyder, in the part of Adam, displayed a fine voice, and his interpretation of the role was most satisfactory. The most interesting character in the opera was furnished by Maria Vico, who was well cast in Adam's role.

BALLET NOTABLE

The dancing was colorful, and the acting in the scene on the bank of the Nile was most convincing. The other parts were taken as follows: Hilda, Ferns of Road, King of Egypt, Natalie Cervi, Mesmer, Francesco Cervi, and Fritolani.

Latin America Richest Field to Work, Says Man Who Knows

When Horace Greeley fifty years ago advised youth to "Go West," it did so because at that time the West had enormous undeveloped resources.

Today, however, the great land of opportunity and resources not yet properly developed is Latin America. In the opinion of Peter M. Cutler, who in twenty years has risen from the unimportant post of timekeeper on a Cuban sugar plantation to president of the United Fruit Company.

CUTLER'S SUGGESTIONS

Here are some of the suggestions Mr. Cutler makes to the youth who seeks adventure in the tropics.

"Get all the education you can. No college or school will make a man, but education is a great help to a person with ability."

"Choose a business you like. You must make your business your main interest in life."

"Start in the operation end of the business. You must know it from the ground up. This is the only way to get the point of view of the worker and thoroughly understand production."

"If the first job doesn't suit you, look for another," he advises young men. "Keep on trying until you find the job you like."

Mr. Cutler feels that Latin America has more to offer than any other locality today. The small countries of Latin America, he says, have not been developed as regards potential development. The United States has developed enormous manufacturing concerns. In this stage of our development, we need more foreign markets. The Latin American market, though not as large as the European market, is large as our own and as free as all the things we need.

Coffee, sugar, bananas, sugar, citrus, oilseeds, hardwood lumber form a part of the long list. While the United States has the means to develop these markets, we are beginning to feel the need of more foreign markets. The small countries of Latin America are needed to fill the positions that are open.

CUTLER'S MAIN WORK

But don't get into the tropics expecting to spend a few years and come home rich. Success there, as in any other place, is the result of hard work. There is no competition against Europe. The average American, Mr. Cutler says, feels that he is a better trader than the European. This is a mistake. The European, particularly the English, is a better trader.

MABEL GILMAN COREY LOSES RARE FURS

Pain, Nov. 4.—Rare furs valued at $10,000 stolen here last night by Mabel Gilman Corey, divorced wife of William E. Corey, former steel magnate, and the former lady of the house, who were also the subject of the police have been informed that a stolen coat and an ermine cape appeared from a reception. Further than this the police know nothing.

About a year ago jewelry valued at $10,000 and a half trunks were stolen from Mrs. Corey. Some of the jewelry was recovered following the arrest of the Corey chauffeur. At that time the police warned Mrs. Corey to be more careful of her valuable trinkets.

NEW DESIGN ON AUTO PLATES FOR 1925

White Numerals on Black Background With Inscription Underneath

A new design features the Massachusetts automobile number plates for 1925 which will be ready for distribution on Monday next.

The new plates have white numerals on a black background with the inscription "MASS. 1925" showing directly underneath the figure numbers, the letter "M" coming at the extreme left of the plate and the last numeral of the year at the extreme right.

This will prevent the cutting away either the extreme left or right number of the license number, as has been reported in several instances where drivers of automobiles have been involved in accidents. The new spacing will also prevent unscrupulous automobile men from painting over the 1924 license plates.

Applications will be accepted on and after Monday at the main office of the registry of motor vehicles at Commonwealth house, at the branches in Lynn, Fall River, Lowell, Lawrence, Springfield, New Bedford, Worcester and Springfield.

Register Goodwin expects that on

HERE IT IS--THE 1925 BAY STATE MODEL

SHOWN BY MISS DOROTHY ABBISS

It doesn't follow that this particular registration plate will be attached to a car at the Motor house, 21 Clark street, Boston.

White figures on black background, and a new arrangement of "MASS. 1925" are the notable features.

Jan. 1, 1925, approximately 40,000 Massachusetts automobile owners will want to run their cars. This means it will be necessary to distribute more than 40,000 number plates.

The registry has reserved the low numbers up to 10,000. Instead of $600, as heretofore. All the five-figure plates, above 10,000 and up to 100,000, have been reserved for applications mailed to the Boston office and will be assigned in the order in which the applications are received.

These five-figure plates are the most numerous available for general distribution. The registry says no attention will be paid to requests for special numbers because these requests have become so numerous that they are a positive nuisance and have interfered seriously with the registration work.

BABY WAITING YEAR FOR FATHER

Wife at Hospital in Salem to Be Given to State as "Unclaimed"

Little Gladys Fay, mysterious wife who was left nearly six years ago at the Victoria Hospital, Salem, and whose parents have never called to see her, is about to become a state ward.

Soon she will be committed and forced into some straitened address but parents claim her and pay for her keep at the hospital.

The announcement was made today by Miss S. V. Hubbert, superintendent of the hospital, who has cared for the child since it was left there.

The story of Gladys is pathetic. Nearly six years ago a man giving his name as Lee Fay came with his wife and three-week-old baby daughter to the Victoria Hospital. Lee Gladys was not well, so Fay and his wife left her there for treatment.

For three years Fay sent money to pay for the expense of Gladys. Every Christmas money found its way out of boys at the hospital door from Gladys' parents. But the parents never came.

As Gladys grew older she asked for her mother, but her mother never answered.

Last year Miss Hubbert announced that the parents must pay the expense of the child, as she could not continue supporting Gladys. The father telephoned Miss Hubbert, saying he would take her away. That was the last heard from him.

Today Miss Hubbert stated that she will give Fay one more chance. If he has grown to love little Gladys as though she were his own child, as Miss Hubbert said, "I have already adopted a boy, I can't properly care for Gladys, now that she is fast reaching the age where the expense will be great. I am appealing to this man who calls himself Fay to come forward and take his 'failing little daughter away and give her a good home."

If he does not answer the appeal, said Gladys to the State and one of several families who want her will then be permitted to adopt her. I hate to do this, but I must. Circumstances compel me to do it.

WORK SCARCER, BUT FEWER ARE IDLE

State Employment Figures Show Calls for Men in Big October Drop

Falls more sharply in October than in September, according to figures issued by the State employment office, Nov. 22, 1924. But, if applications for work are to be taken as a criterion, there was no corresponding increase in unemployment during the same period.

The report shows that the number of men called for during the month, 569 less than in September and 244 less than in October, 1923. Of these 1143 positions were filled.

But the number of persons seeking work fell off to 3274, or a decrease of four per cent over the preceding month.

During the month 1521 persons were called for, 1115 of whom were men and 406 women.

THE HELPING HAND

Pleads for Needy Family

Helping Hand Editor:
I am asking for help for a family of six that is greatly in need of many things for the winter. The father was laid off in the early spring and had to take another job which didn't begin to pay his expenses. They are desperate for food, clothing, blankets and shoes. There are four children, three girls, 2 1/2, 1 year and 2 months and boy, almost 2. The two oldest need shoes. They are wearing sneakers now. They also need warm coats and slippers. The mother is very much in need of underwear, size 46. I hope someone will help them. I have done all I could for them. MRS. P. S.

For Girl and Man

Helping Hand Editor:
I have some clothes that will fit a child about seven years and would like to send them to someone who could make use of them. Also four suits of heavy men's underwear, size 40.
Thank you. Mrs. M. S. can make good use of the child's clothing and Mrs. E. M. H.'s husband is in need of the underwear.

She Has No Hat

Helping Hand Editor:
I would be so thankful if you could get some clothing for my two children, girl, 8 and boy, 5. I have a baby 3 months old and it costs me about two dollars a week for its milk as it is not very saving. This is quite a bit for me to have to spend as my husband is only working two or three days a week. The two children have no heavy clothing to go to school and I do not like to keep them home. I take age 38 or 40. I have no hair or crown cannot go out to church. I am handy at making over things for the children, myself and husband. My husband needs warm underwear and heavy clothing.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Dr. F. X. Mahoney

Boston Health Commissioner
If you are above forty years of age there is one chance out of ten that you will some time die of cancer. This statement is based upon the latest report of the United States Census Bureau. There was an estimated total of about 100,000 deaths from cancer in last year. The death rate from cancer is increasing about 25 per cent every year.

The great trouble about cancer is that, until it is advanced, it is not very noticeable. It is gratifying, however, to state that present medical knowledge in treating cancer are successful in many cases that, heretofore, were considered hopeless. The success is based upon early diagnosis, followed by prompt treatment.

Cancer often develops from an ulcer of the tongue or cheek that has been long irritated by a bad filling or the sharp edge of a decayed tooth. Cancer of the skin and tongue rarely, if ever, occurs among men, but does occur among men who are smokers.

Now that women have taken to "turning the weed" we may expect that they, too, will develop liability to cancer of the lip and tongue. In the presence of any of these conditions an examination should be made by a competent physician and appropriate treatment should be adopted.

Years of disappointment have at last awakened the Minute Men spirit in the breasts of the hardy fishermen and a co-operative plan of selling will be put into effect.

The bulk of New England fishermen earn less than $1,000 a year, and many only $600, after risking their lives on stormy seas—freezing in Winter, broiling in Summer.

Minute Men of the N. E. Fishing Industry Seek Way to Prosperity By Co-operation

THE sacred cod is going visiting. With him are going the sweet mackerel, the appetizing oyster, the luscious smelt and the delicious lobster.

The spirit of the Minute Man has been awakened in the New England fisherman, red-blooded man of courage, but slight reward.

For many decades this hardy seafarer has toiled unceasingly on the lonely swell of the seas, in the numbing winds of Winter and blazing suns of Summer.

How has he been repaid?

The bulk of New England fishermen net for a year's work less than $1,000.

Some eke a wage of only $600 for the daily risking of their lives. The fisherman worries not at all over his income tax return.

How would you feel if you froze each working day of Winter and broiled each working day of Summer—for $600 a year?

Only the dauntless spirit of the fisherman enables him to carry on. Only this same dauntless spirit has shown him a way out at last.

Taking their cue from the success of the California citrus fruit growers, the Aroostook potato farmers and the Burley Tobacco Association of Kentucky, the New England fishermen have formed a co-operative marketing association.

All fish hereafter will be pooled by the members of this energetic band, to be sold through a single representative.

Instead of receiving a pittance for their crushing labors, the men that go down to the sea in ships to fish, will be paid a living wage.

The amount of their earnings will be measured solely by the extent of their industry.

How will the organization benefit New England generally?

The fishermen have not moved for themselves alone. In forming their co-operative organization they have considered the laboring man as a whole and the good of New England generally.

New England's sea products will be placed in the markets of the nation. Instead of the Pacific Coast shipping fish to Boston, as in the past, Boston will ship fish to the Pacific Coast.

From a present marketing radius of 250 miles from Boston, the range of markets will be country-wide.

Nor is this the loudest note that is sounding!

In the co-operative organization, the members of a great and strong labor union have joined hands with their employers for the common good.

The employees will work for the boss' interests. The boss will labor in the interest of his employees. Profits will be divided mutually.

The organization marks the first big attempt by employers and employees in a vast industry to work together on a profit-sharing basis.

Why has it been necessary for the men of New England's oldest and most picturesque calling to band themselves together in this manner?

Because, since the first line was dropped into the rolling Atlantic in Colonial days and the first cod was lifted from his briny home, the fisherman has been woefully exploited.

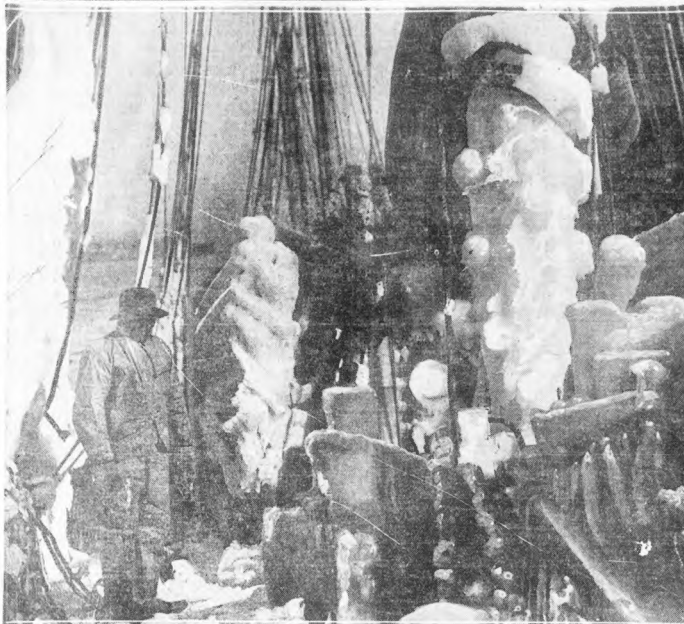

He has been paid two cents a pound for his fish, when the market conditions—the demand as measured against the supply—should have given him more.

He has been handicapped by a limited market, capable of absorbing only a fixed amount of his product.

A few years ago, the Fishermen's Union of the Atlantic was formed, after several smaller attempts at organization had failed.

The personnel of the Fishermen's Union are men of sturdy stock. The sea is no coddler.

IN PORT AFTER FIGHTING ICY GALES

Typical scene on a Boston fishing schooner after a Winter's trip to the Banks. The ice-covered deck and shrouds indicate what the men have to go through in their hazardous calling which pays so little. Navigating an animated iceberg through treacherous gales and angry seas is no small feat and all too often the vessel arrives with her flag at half-mast.

When the fishermen meet a problem, they go through it, not around. When the returns are in, the problem is the defeated candidate.

Such a problem was presented to them in the narrow market and starvation prices offered by shrewd buyers. The Eastern Fish Department of the Fishermen's Union of the Atlantic, is their answer.

But the manner in which this co-operative marketing organization was made possible, is hardly to the credit of the rest of New England, which should be alive to its own resources.

A San Francisco lawyer, Aaron Sapiro, was the prime mover in getting the fishermen together under the plan.

A wealthy Kentuckian, Judge Robert L. Bingham of Louisville, furnished the means to put the plan on a working basis.

Where were New England's Minute Men and their foresight when the salvation of the fishermen's problem was presented?

Attorney Sapiro took hold of the enterprise with as much spirit as if he had long dwelt along the village coast of New England.

Judge Bingham, firm believer in co-operative marketing and the man who advanced $2,000,000 to start the Burley Tobacco Association in Kentucky, underwrote many first expenses of the fishermen's organization.

But the far-sighted Kentucky gentleman did not stop there.

He offered himself also, as ready to advance $1,000,000 to the fishermen in their project, if necessary.

That's what Kentucky thinks of New England enterprise and grit.

Some New England men are aiding, however, in banding the organization together on businesslike lines.

Mr. Kenyon Butterfield appears as a member of the first organizing Board of Directors.

Another name is that of Professor A. E. Cance, head of the Department of Economics, Massachusetts Agricultural School.

A third is Mr. Kenneth J. Ferguson, owner of the fishing schooner "Columbia" and president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Bank.

Mr. Fred Pigeon, co-owner of fishing schooners with Charles Francis Adams, treasurer of Harvard College, also appears, as does James Larkin, captain of the "Columbia."

With this backbone, the fishermen are confident that when their co-operative marketing organization is launched, shortly after New Year's, every day will be Friday in the nation, and their problems will be solved.

They believe that the people of the United States desire to eat more fresh fish—if it is sent to them. As basis for this belief they cite the experience of Detroit during war time.

A Detroit newspaper sent East for a carload of fish and placed the products of New England waters in Detroit markets.

The supply was bought by householders within six hours.

A second order was for several carloads. These sold as quickly as the first.

Skilled observers have been busy in other mid-Western cities, feeling the pulse of the people as regards fish for the table.

They report that the entire West is eager for fish.

When it is realized that ninety-eight per cent. of all fish caught in New England waters is consumed in five States, the pitiful limit of the present market is seen.

Four of these five States are in New England itself. The other is Pennsylvania.

Massachusetts alone absorbs fifty-six per cent. of the entire catch. And in Massachusetts only one day of the week—Friday—is a big fish-selling day.

For this fish, the retailers receive a fair profit.

The fishing schooner captains receive a few cents a pound for their product.

The difference is absorbed in the handling and transfer of the fish somewhere in the middle of the line.

From the early days of New England fishing, the captains themselves have been their own salesmen.

They have failed woefully and the failure is of their own telling.

Because the buyers' side of the market is well organized, but each fishing captain sells as an individual, in competition with many other individuals, each has received a mere pittance.

Ten captains may land their fish on the dock. One is offered four cents a pound, another three, another two. If the last captain accepts the two cents, the man offered four must come down to meet the price.

Is it fair that lack of salesmanship should be substituted for the age-old and working law of supply and demand?

Not alone against the ship owner and the captain does this situation militate. The fishermen in the crew are affected, as well.

Except on trawlers, New England fishermen work on a percentage basis. Good prices on a large catch make for a bigger cut of the money for the men, as well as for the captains and owners.

Is not a man entitled to greater reward for greater labors?

But in New England the situation rebounds the other way. Greater labors, producing a greater catch, bring lower prices because the limited market cannot absorb the quantity, according to the buyers.

Years of facing this problem are what have brought about the fishermen's co-operative marketing plan.

The years of disappointment at last have awakened the Minute Man spirit in the breasts of the men that go down to the sea in ships.

Now all the fish will be sold through one general representative, at a price commensurate with the needs of the market throughout the land.

Prices will be governed by supply and demand, rather than by the timidity or selling ignorance of the individual captains.

In all parts of the nation will be representatives of the big organization, each in close touch with his particular market.

America will be educated to the advantages of eating more fish—more New England fish.

There are 3,000 active members in the Fishermen's Union of the Atlantic. Of this number, more than 1,200 have signed already as partners in the enterprise.

In addition, two score captains have joined the move to place New England's oldest industry on the well and prosperous list.

By their own bootstraps, the fishermen are lifting themselves out of the lethargy of centuries, as the first move toward prosperity.

The Minute Men of the fishing industry are setting out on their biggest voyage, with the markets of the nation as their destination. Let other New England Minute Men bid them "God speed."

We believe they will—and the fishermen believe they will.

The spirit of the Minute Man is aid and co-operation!
